DIVISION OF LIBRARY EXTENSION

The 1959-1960 library year can be proudly and realistically assessed as a good one. Library highlights were the publication of new national standards for school libraries; the enactment into law of two very important pieces of state legislation affecting libraries; the success of federal legislation which will insure the continuance of the federal funds for extension of public library service in rural areas for a five-year period beginning with fiscal 1962; and the announcement by the American Library Association of a $45,000 grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York to establish standards for library service agencies at the state level.

This annual report is offered as a record of the year's performance in services and activities at the Division of Library Extension. It reflects the combined efforts and esprit de corps of a fine staff of thirty-seven people who work in harmony and with interest as well as enthusiasm.

PUBLIC LIBRARY SERVICE

Statistical reports for the calendar year 1959 were received from 377 of the state's 392 public libraries. The 1959 statewide per capita income for public library service was $3.02—an increase of ten cents or 3% over last year's figure. The tabulation below gives the expenditures per capita by population groupings as well as the per capita range in individual public library expenditures within each group.

Population Group	No. of Libraries Reporting	Per Capita Library Income	Per Capita Range
			High	Low

In 1959, $14,643,145 was spent for local public library service. Of this total amount, 57% went for salaries and 11.7% for books—with the remaining 31.3% being absorbed by operating expenses and building maintenance costs. Public libraries circulated 31,811,755 books for a statewide per capita circulation of 6.5. It is interesting to note that public library expenditures increased 3% over the previous year; and that a 3½% increase was also evidenced in the circulation figures.

The 1956 Cost Supplement issued at the time of the publication of the new A.L.A. standards for public library service was replaced by a 1959 Cost Supplement. Apparently three years are as long as cost figures have any validity; beyond that time, new figures must be used if financial planning is to have any measure of validity. While the Cost Supplement clearly states that per capita support figures cannot be offered as a goal or standard for libraries because of the many variables involved, the work does state that to meet the need for a generalized figure, it can only be said that in 1959, in a more-or-less typical city or county of 100,000 people, approximately $3.50 per capita is needed to achieve minimum standards. Massachusetts boasts of only five cities serving a population of 100,000 people; only two of which meet or exceed the $3.50 per capita support figure. Of the 47 cities and towns serving a population of 25,000 or over, only 8 have a per capita library support of $3.50 or over!

As vitally important public service agencies, libraries have a stake and a logical place in metropolitan area planning. From preliminary meetings in the spring of 1959 for discussion and exploration of areas of library cooperation, coordination or integration, there has emerged in the past year an organization known as the Metropolitan Boston Library Planning Council with membership at present comprised of a representative from each of the public libraries in the 38 communities in the Boston Metropolitan Parks District. This group with which the Division works closely, has been meeting regularly for study and evaluation, as well as consistent and continuous planning on the library problems of the Boston Metropolitan Area.

U. S. Department of Agriculture recently revised its Farmers' Bulletin #2142 which deals with Library Service for Rural People. While we hope that all rural people read every word of this issue, we are even more anxious that they study the cover photograph very carefully and read the acknowledgment on the reverse side of the cover page. It shows Mr. Paul E. Laird of Hoosac Tunnel, Mass., a rural citizen, taking his children to a regular stop of the State Bookmobile which operates out of the Division's branch office in Greenfield and serves 39 communities in the Franklin-Hampden-Hampshire County area.

National Library Week was observed throughout the state from April 3-7, 1960. Mr. Andrew B. Holmstrom, Vice President of Norton Company, former Mayor of Worcester and former President of the Worcester Free Public Library Board of Directors, served as Chairman of the State Committee and Mr. Thurston Taylor, Librarian of the Worcester Free Public Library, served as the Committee's Secretary. The Division Director served on the State Committee; and this agency cooperated in the preparation and distribution of National Library Week Newsletters.

SCHOOL LIBRARY SERVICE

In July 1959 Mrs. Alice B. Howard resigned as Supervisor of School Libraries. This position was filled in September of the same year by Mrs. Charlene S. McKeithen.

Highlight of the year was the publication by the American Association of School Libraries of "Standards for School Library Programs" with a discussion guide. This is the first revision of school library standards since 1945. Massachusetts was selected by the A.A.S.L. as one of nine states to participate in a pilot project for the introduction of these new school library standards. The State School Library Supervisor worked closely with the Massachusetts School Librarians Association in publicizing the new standards and in the planning of the statewide meeting held in Worcester in April 1960 to introduce school administrators and school librarians to them.

H. 827 (an Act providing that school librarians shall be certified by the Board of Education) was passed by the General Court and became Chapter 20 of the Acts of 1960 which further amends the General Laws, Chapter 71, Section 38G, by including School Librarians among the professional employees of a school committee who must be certified. This legislation, which went into effect May 1, 1960, will insure the appointment at the local level of personnel to plan the school library programs, who, in addition to being library science specialists, will also meet all the requirements of the teacher certification law. This we consider a professional step in the right direction—reflecting a general interpretation that school librarians are teachers, as well as librarians. Under the provisions of the new legislation, special requirements for the certification of school librarians were promulgated by the Board of Education in June 1960 to be effective June 23, 1963.

Plans are underway to provide for an annual collection, compilation and tabulation of school library statistics. School librarians and school administrators were made aware of special news of school library significance or interest by three issues of Random Notes for School Librarians prepared and distributed from the Division by the School Library Supervisor. In addition to many advisory field visits to local school libraries, Mrs. McKeithen served as the library specialist on several committees applying the evaluative criteria of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools to local high school programs.

REGIONAL LIBRARY SERVICE

About thirty-five per cent of the state's cities and towns are served directly by the four regional branch offices of the Division. There are now over 72,000 volumes in these branch office collections. The advent of the federal grant program has been responsible in large measure for the improvement of the regional book stocks. This situation in turn has made it possible to regionalize inter-library loan and thus to expedite the filling of many subject and title requests from the western, southeastern and northeastern sections of the state. Over one-half million volumes were distributed in fiscal 1960 from the four state bookmobiles. Circulation increased by 16.1%. Two of our four branches are still located in rent-free quarters in local public library buildings. There is no elasticity left in either the Pittsfield or Fall River region. They are both stretched beyond capacity—to hold books, to contain their equipment and staff—to serve their public adequately. These are state operations with two decades of service to their credit and consideration should be given to housing the branch offices in adequate rented quarters. The regional branch office in North Reading continues to be financed entirely by federal funds. The services and activities of that office will be discussed in more detail in another section of this report.

LIBRARY SERVICES ACT—PUBLIC LAW 597

The Division's 1960 state appropriation only permitted establishing eligibility for $80,000 of the $124,790 in federal funds available to the state. Of the $80,000 under the state program, 62% was allocated for salaries, 27% for books and related materials, and 11% for equipment and such office and administration costs as postage, telephone, supplies, travel, motor vehicle repairs and rent. About 44% of the federal funds were channeled into the operation of the Northeast Regional Office in North Reading. The circulation figures from the Northeast Regional Bookmobile showed a tremendous 41.2% increase over the previous year.

We watched with great interest the progress in the second session of the 86th Congress of the 52 House Bills and the one Senate Bill endorsed by 55 Senators—all bills to provide extension of the Library Services Act for another five years beyond fiscal 1961. S. 2830 passed the Senate with a great flourish. H. 12125, the House Bill, was bottled up in the Rules Committee as Congress headed for adjournment. On August 22, 1960, under Suspension of the Rules, S. 2830 was brought to the floor of the House and sailed through with a 192 to 19 vote. So as of July 1, 1961, Public Law 86-679 takes over and our state plan and program under the Library Services Act continues for another five years.

LIBRARY LEGISLATION

An active and fruitful year, legislatively speaking, closed with two home-runs and one runner on third base.

H. 24, the bill introduced by the Board of Library Commissioners, was passed by the General Court and signed into law by the Governor in May 1960. This legislation corrects inconsistencies in existing legislation pertaining to libraries, deletes antiquated sections of the library laws no longer applicable, and puts on the books legislation which will enable the Board of Library Commissioners to contract with other state library agencies and with local municipal libraries for the purpose of improving or further developing library service in a designated area.

H. 827, the bill amending the teacher certification law to include school librarians, was also passed and is discussed elsewhere.

As this report is being written, a bill to provide state aid to public libraries is still in the General Court. It was originally introduced as H. 2275 by the Massachusetts Library Association and was endorsed by the Board of Library Commissioners. H. 2275 passed the House with amendments and became H. 3162 in the redraft. The Senate passed H. 3162 again with amendments, and the legislation was redrafted and became S. 692. At this time S. 692 has passed the House with amendments; and we await the final action which will result after a House and Senate Conference Committee. There seems to be relatively little real opposition to state aid to public libraries on the part of either senators or representatives. The conflict at present is in the method of financing the legislation, with the Senate favoring the financing from the income tax revenue and the House holding out for an appropriation from the General Fund.

CLINICS—COURSES—INSTITUTES—WORKSHOPS

Many and varied were the special training activities available during the 1960 fiscal year for practising librarians. Members of the Division's Advisory Staff held several clinics, workshops and institutes on weeding the book collection, reference work, library service to children, book evaluation and reviewing, use of films and circulation procedures. Several courses in library science held under the sponsorship of the Division of University Extension and the Extension Program of the State Teachers Colleges were well attended. With the Massachusetts Library Aid Association underwriting the instruction costs, the Division organized three other special courses with enrollment on a tuition-free basis open to librarians and library assistants in small rural communities.

RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT

We round out another busy year with a special vote of thanks to the library boards of trustees and the librarians of the Fall River and Pittsfield Public Libraries for having provided us for so many years with a house and home for our regional branch offices serving those areas. To the citizens of the town of Wellfleet, we pledge our assistance and offer our best wishes in their efforts to rebuild the local town library which was destroyed this past winter by fire. The two great political parties of the United States, Democratic and Republican, merit the library bouquet of the year for their vision in including a powerful statement on the importance and support of libraries in their respective platforms.

Dr. Ernest Dichter, President of the Institute for Motivational Research has said, "We clamor for more education without attempting to motivate people to read more books . . . our future and that of the world depends on the competitive advantages we are able to derive from reading all kinds of books." To Nathan M. Pusey, President of Harvard University, is attributed this statement: "That we know as much as we do, care as much as we do, behave as well as we do, at all levels, despite all the forces working in a contrary direction in our society is owed more to books, and to our libraries than we customarily take the time to consider."

Good public and good school library service is more important today than ever. Efforts on the local community level must be guided, buttressed and supplemented by a strong vigorous library extension agency at the state level. The situation with regard to the Division's totally inadequate quarters in the Department of Education Building becomes with each passing day more disgraceful, more inefficient, more abusive of state property, and more stifling to the state program. Quiet prestige and fiscal insignificance are not proper partners for an expanding program. The realities of present service and the potentialities of enlarged services must be translated now into an appropriation to provide new quarters for this agency, if the agency is to continue to perform its present functions and to assume new activities.
